I agree with this tinkering. We just need to go back and see if our analysis shows a difference in the listings in the areas where DEQ did analysis.

Well in some ways I think that we all will be reanalyzing their listing. We all are just looking at all the data...so comparing what we come up with (for the limited parameters & geography that DEQ did) & what DEQ did should catch any errors in their analysis.

I know when we got OR's list, we said we'd take a cursory look at their proposed additions, but focus on the delistings since we were likely to find more errors there. I think we need to revisit that decision. After talking with Karla and Debra, they believe there were errors made in the analysis for many of their additions and do not think they should be approved. This includes the biocriteria, and potentially other ones. This gives me little faith in the accuracy of any of the rest of them, so I think we need to review them. Has anyone done that yet? I know Gretchen is working on the biocriteria ones. I think Helen looked at some, since she found the same water being proposed for listing and delisting I think! Not sure though if all of them have been reviewed. Can you let me know what the status is, and if you need me to do anything or you guys are going to divide them up if need be? Thanks!!!!
